Speakers Announced For Dry Farming Congress

To Be Held in Billings, Mont., This Month

Number Fourteen of the Dry Farming Congress Bulletin which has just been issued from the international headquarters of that organization at Denver, Colorado, contains a complete resume of the preparations for the Fourth Dry Farming Congress which will meet at Billings, Montana, October 26, 28, and the preliminary premium list of the International Dry Farming Exposition which will be held October 25-29, in connection with the Congress. The Bulletin says:

"With speakers representing officially the governments of many nations, with exhibits showing the products of practical dry farming in many lands; with delegates representative of the farming interests of the world and all the varied industries inter-related with agriculture, the Fourth Dry Farming Congress will be the most momentous convention of the year. Never in the history of agricultural gatherings have so many men of international prominence been secured for places on the program. Never before have the preparations for the Dry Farming Congress been carried out upon a scale so broad."

Among the more prominent speakers announced are:

INTERNATIONAL.
George Harcourt, deputy minister of agriculture, province of Alberta, Canada; vice president and corresponding secretary of the Dry Farming Congress.

W. J. Rutherford, deputy minister of agriculture, Saskatchewan, Canada; vice president and corresponding secretary of the Dry Farming Congress.

Hon. W. R. Muirhead, commissioner of agriculture, Saskatchewan, Canada.

Thomas H. Woodford, Cardston, Alberta, Canada, member of the International advisory exhibit committee of the Congress; in charge of the Canadian exhibit.

W. H. Fairfield, Lethbridge, Alberta, Canada, superintendent of Canadian dry farm experiments.

Senor Don Romulo Escobar, ingeniero agronomo, president of the School of Agriculture, Ciudad Juarez, Mexico; vice president and corresponding secretary of the Dry Farming Congress.

John Safary, special delegate from the National Agricultural Association of Hungary.

Hon. L. Goger, representing the agricultural ministry of the Hungarian Kingdom.

Dr. Lawrence Beata-Neves, chief engineer of the technical department of public works and industries of Brazil; vice president and corresponding secretary of the Dry Farming Congress.

Hon. John Barrett, director of the International Bureau of the American Republics. Mr. Barrett will discuss "Arid Agriculture in South America."

A special delegate whose name has not been announced, will come from Russia, representing the Agricultural Society of Tashkent.

Dr. A. Arason, Department of Agriculture of Turkey, in charge of the land experiments in Anatolia.

To get results from any great convention, a community should be represented at that convention by a live delegation of intelligent, progressive citizens. This applies to the Dry Farming Congress in greater degree than to any political gathering or one which is devoted to a movement of lesser scope. The practical benefits from such an assemblage as that which will meet at Billings, Montana, the last week in October, are largely the result of the discussions which bring out the experience of men who have forged ahead along the road to Raymond's Future Assured.

The town has a Pure Spring Water Supply equal to the Best. Excellent Manufacturing Prospects. An $80,000 Waterworks System to be Installed. Centre of the Greatest Farming District in the WEST.

the solution of the problems which that convention considers. It is not with the means of every man to visit every other section of the country where the problems that confront him are being worked out in the actual practice of his calling, but by attendance at a convention of the workers in that calling either in person or by competent representatives, he can get in contact with the workers and students and profit from their experience. In the International Dry Farming Exposition, which will be held in connection with the Dry Farming Congress, the fields are brought to the delegates and examples are shown of what has been accomplished in many lands and under various conditions, presenting in one compact, convincing picture, the lessons which would require years of travel for the individual to learn by personal research.

Viewing this Congress as one of the greatest economic movements of the age, it is of vital importance to every agricultural community that it be represented at the Fourth Dry Farming Congress at Billings, Montana, October 26-28. If such action has not been taken, the governor of the state, the commissioners of this country, the mayor of the city, the directors of our local commercial bodies, should give their immediate attention to the appointment of representative men to go to Billings as delegates from our people, to learn the lessons that will be brought out at that meeting and bring back to us the report of progress in the science of agriculture which will be an inspiration to our people to continue advancing the development of our commonwealth and our country.

Advise the Farmers To Hold Their Grain

So Says Grain Growers' Association

Calgary, Oct. 5.—In conversation with the Albertan last night, Mr. T. L. Swift, manager of the Calgary branch of the Grain Growers' Grain Association of Winnipeg, and J. H. Thamer, the Alberta field representative of the association, expressed surprise that Mr. Geo. Hill, grain inspector, should undertake to advise the farmers in regard to marketing their grain, and should couple the name of the Grain Growers Association with it.

"We do advise the farmers," said Mr. Swift, "to hold back the marketing of their grain, believing that the best results will be derived from a gradual feeding of the market."

"It is a singular fact," he continued, "that whenever prices start going down, the farmers cut loose and their wheat goes at the lowering prices."

"We believe that the right time to sell grain is when the markets are sound and steady or rising. As soon as it starts to go down, stop selling and that will force a reaction, as the speculators must have the wheat and cannot do without it. If we give it to them faster than they want it, we should look for a decline."

that all the wheat in the world today will be required to carry over until next year's crop is on the market, and if it were systematically marketed there would be no decline in prices.

The Winnipeg office of the Grain Growers' Grain Association is at present handling 150,000 bushels of wheat per day, which is double the amount it was handling at this time last year. Then why advocate rushing the grain to market?

"It is a well known fact that the elevator companies require 200,000 bushels of wheat to fill their options for October and November delivery, and every bushel marketed now helps them to save their options and consequently affects the market."

"The same conditions existed on the Chicago market a few days ago when wheat took a rise of 14 cents per bushel in one day. The speculators required the grain to fill their contracts for September delivery and were forced to pay the price. It is the old story of supply and demand, of having and wanting."

"We would strongly urge on the farmers to study the situation and not to be too easy in rushing their grain to market."

Laying CORNER - STONE

With ideal weather and a sky of azure blue, the ceremonies connected with the laying of the corner stone of the new parliament buildings of Alberta were most successfully carried out on Friday last.

The day's ceremonies share with those of the inauguration four years and a month ago, the honor of being the most momentous in the history of Alberta. Four years' progress were, however, recorded today in the development of the city. Never have such lavish decorations in evergreen, bunting and illumination been seen in Alberta as during the past few days. The city has been crowded with people from all parts of the province, and all the principal men have been present.

At half-past three, in the presence of more than six thousand spectators, the corner stone was laid by Earl Grey. This function was preceded with a monster procession of military, fraternal and civic organizations.

For the year ended March 31, 1909, Canadian exports of butter and cheese amounted to $1,527,436 and $20,384,666 respectively, 85 per cent. of the butter and practically all of the cheese going to Great Britain, United States, Newfoundland and British West Indies were the other countries that received Canadian butter in any quantities. A table of percentage shows how Canadian exports of butter and cheese bulk on the British market. Britain draws only 1.1 per cent. of her butter imports from Canada, Denmark and Russia supplying 44.1 and 15.2 per cent. respectively. In cheese, however, Canada leads, supplying 66.8 per cent. of the Great Britain's cheese imports, Holland and New Zealand following with 12.1 and 11.5 per cent. respectively. The foregoing information is contained in the report for year ending March, 1909, issued by the Dairy and Cold Storage Commission. This report covers one of the many branches of activity of the Dominion Department of Agriculture and is offered as an appendix to the report of that Department. The work of the branch is grouped under five natural heads, namely, dairying, work of the assistant dairy commissioner, extension of markets, fruit and cold storage.

Canada is a land of great prospects to-day. While the most rapid strides forward are made in Western and Central Canada, there is splendid progress made in the east as well. Outside capital is beginning to realize the great opportunities for profitable investment, especially in the west, and an important factor is that British capital in particular is more eager for Canadian investment than at any former period. This is one reason for feeling optimistic regarding the future prospects in this country.

It used to be that easterners were somewhat suspicious of western investments, and a general matter of discussion here was the "cold field" policy of eastern capital, even Eastern Canada capital. Those times are passing, however, and what we used to have to coax into the west is now tumbling over itself to get here. As an eastern capitalist said in Winnipeg this week, the marvelous commercial development

The Origin of Manago.
China claims to have originated manago treatment. According to long time Chinese ideas, life is entirely dependent on "air currents," which are designated as the primary airs of the organism. So long, then, as the body is permeated by the air current it is "proof" against disease, and the object of physical exercise is to circulate the air current. To effect this the Chinese system is divided into three periods, each period comprising a hundred days. The first period commencing at the time of the new moon.

The patient must rise at 4 o'clock in the morning and walk outside his home, taking seven deep inspirations, and a few minutes after this two youths who have been specially trained commence a gentle friction all over the body, starting over the cardiac area. At the time of full moon a further set of inspiratory exercises are taken. Later on, in the second period, the various parts of the body are rubbed with wooden plates until the muscles are hardened and it is not until the hardening takes place that the real physical exercises are taken. Between the fifth and sixth month is the period of greatest activity, the European dumbbell being replaced by large scales filled with stones. It is in this third period that the back muscles are chiefly exercised.—Chicago Chronicle

The Development of the Skin.
By almost constant overcovering day and night for excessive periods, the skin has by degeneration adapted itself to its reduced requirements. From birth to death we are in a state of degeneration. The tendency is for the skin to degenerate to a tissue paper consistency. The exquisite texture of the skin at once indicates its importance as one of the organs of the body. It is hourly showing that it is a tissue of power which can be developed. In the skin is indicated by the story of the Indian. Being almost naked and yet apparently quite comfortable in inclement weather he was asked why he did not seem to suffer and he made ill by his exposure. He replied: "While man has no pain no sick. Indian skin is healthy. By this excessive covering our peripheral nerves are too intensely impressed by outside changes, our central nervous system too feebly and incompletely developed to handle successfully with heat, disease and traumatic impressions. Its muscular fat and connective tissue substance are all too delicate and defective for our grosser comfort and welfare. All its functional powers are hence reduced. Yet wisdom has found a way to develop the skin.—Philadelphia Medical Journal

Outwitted the Lunatic.
While residing at House I paid a visit to the insane asylum, and among the more remarkable patients one was pointed out to me who had been cured with much difficulty from suicidal death upon himself by voluntary starvation in bed, under the impression that he was deficient, declaring that dead people never eat. It was soon obvious that the same must be fatal, when the humane doctor beholding of the following stratagem. Half a dozen of newspapers, dressed in white shrouds and their faces and hands covered with chalk, were marched in single file with dead silence into a room adjoining that of the patient, where he observed them through a door purposely left open all down to a heavy door.

"Hello!" said the would be corpse to an attendant. "Who be they?"

"Dead men," was the reply.

"What," rejoined the attendant, "do dead men eat?"

"To be sure they do, as you see," answered the attendant.

"If that be the case," exclaimed the dead man, "I'll join them. Let me be furnished."—Hawcutt

Kate Wells's Love Letter.
If that charming woman, O' Kate Wells, did not marry, it was no wonder. She did not have any suitors. A Washington letter has in her possession a little old bit of yellow paper upon which is penciled a love letter. It was procured by Miss Wells from her little girl days. The scrawl runs thus:

"Sweetest, my name is down by the Gate, after school you know I love you."

On the other side of the bit of paper is the address, thus:

"Miss Kate Wells, 1st Street North to the Door goin' out."

It must have been like a breath of the forgotten perfume of romance when the clever, kindly woman happened upon this little old piece of yellow paper on a rainy afternoon of rummaging.

Traced by its Portrait.
If an old English writer be true in his observations, the pleasant must be a very simple kind. For he declares that F. puts his head in the ground and hides that all the body is there hidden. This is just what our old friend the wretch does in the African desert. The same author says that it was also captured by another curious plan. A picture of the kind was painted on cloth and then placed in a spot where it was sure of being seen. By and by a silly peasant coming along catches sight of the portrait and goes up to have a close view of the new neighbor. While so the lower darts near from behind and shows his net over the unwary art-witch.

Many Clocks.
Many clocks with weights and wheels were in use in England during Charlemagne's time, and most of the masterpieces of the fourteenth century possessed such, though these were used to show the astronomical movements, as well as the passage of hours. Throughout the thirteenth century clocks were made mostly by astronomers and blacksmiths, as they were constructed of iron and steel.
